Expertise in cold therapy

Local cold therapy treatments play an important role in physiotherapy and sport medicine. This therapy involves topical application of ointments, sprays, rollers and gels, as well as, for example, cold compresses or cooling pads. Cold applications can be carried out as short-term applications or used for longer, prolonged cold stimulation treatments.

Expertise in heat treatment

In heat therapy there are three different application techniques: by placing a heat-treatment product on the affected area, heat lamp or topical application. In terms of heat-treatment products for placing on the affected area, RÖWO offers a range of options – from heat packs and heat cushions to (cold-) hot compresses. Our products for topical application range from ointments which have a hyperemising effect by means of, for example, finely ground (peeling) pumice, through to thermo oils, rollers and gels which can be applied using soft tissue techniques, or as a follow-up measure. Such products help to intensify the circulation-improving effect of the treatment techniques

Expertise in massage

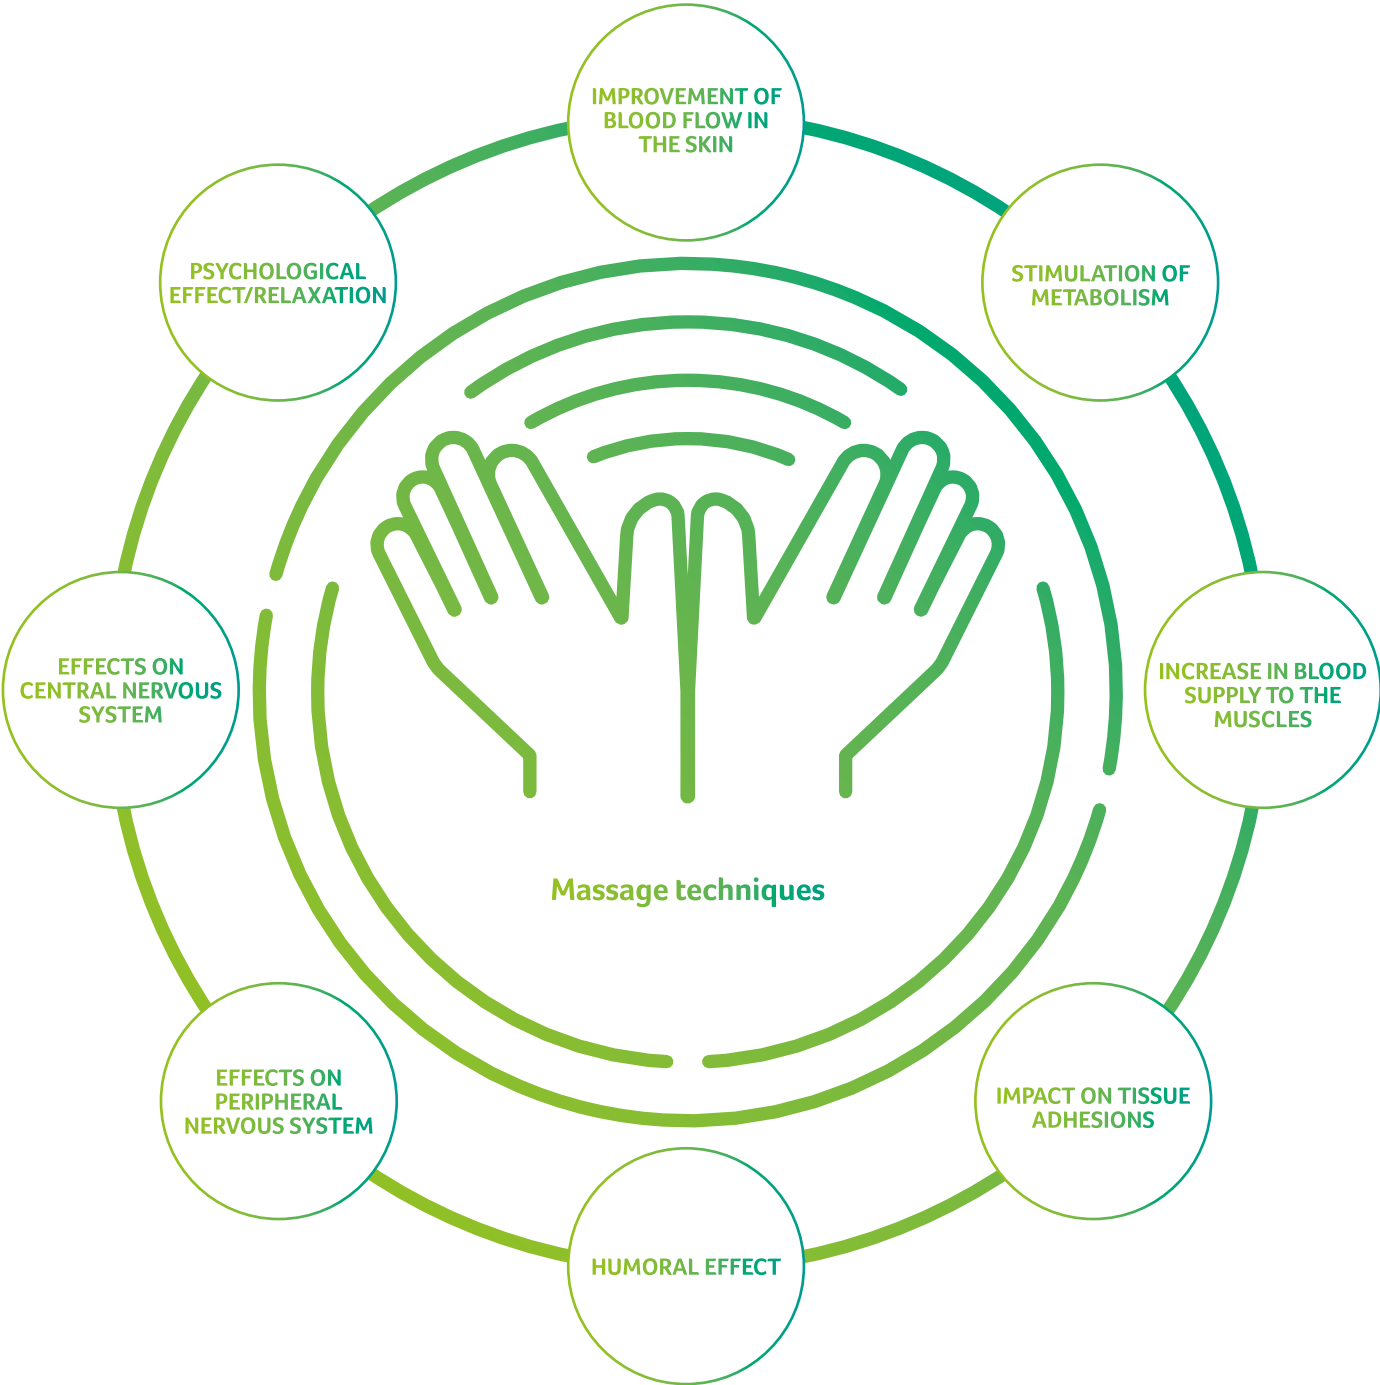

The healing effects of soft tissue techniques

Massage techniques, with their manifold benefits, are a daily feature of a professional's work. The most important role of the skin is its barrier function

- that is to protect the organism from drying out and from external influences.
- RÖWO LiproSens products protect your skin every day
- By means of finely-tuned gradations, variations and combinations of grip and glide properties, RÖWO LiproSens products enable effective application of massage movements, soft tissue techniques and manual therapies

- They facilitate the therapist in applying therapeutic measures to the skin and, at the same time, preserve the natural protective mechanisms and health of the skin of both patient and practitioner

What is LiproSens

Lipo-PROteins play a decisive role in preserving the natural protective mechanisms of skin
SENSitivity is an essential requirement for soft tissue techniques and manual therapy – that makes SENSE!
– Sens: stands for sensitivity feeling and responsiveness
– Sentire: Latin for “to sense” or “to perceive”

Grip & Glide

- RÖWO LiproSens products can be selected according to the following criteria:
 - Desired property (thermo effect, fragrance, care benefits, etc.)
 - Treatment technique to be applied (friction, etc.)
 - Area of application (local, skin, connective tissue, muscles, etc.)
 - Area of the body (back, abdomen, face, etc.)
- RÖWO LiproSens products can be categorised according to the tribology of consistencies and, depending on the consistency, offer different strengths in terms of GRIP and GLIDE
- Depending on what the practitioner requires from the product, the GRIP and GLIDE of each product varies
- Choosing the perfect LiproSens product for your forthcoming treatment enables you to save energy and implement techniques better.
